

Museum Curator Will Address First Convocation Of Term

All Third Hour
Classes Dismissed
Tuesday, March 30

Dr. Charles Russell, Curator of Conservation and Chairman of the Department of Education at the American Museum of Natural History, will speak at the first spring convocation at 10 a. m., Tuesday, March 30, in Memorial Hall. All third hour classes will be dismissed.

Dr. Russell is in charge of the most extensive department of education in any museum in the world. He is responsible for the teaching staff of the museum, for a technical staff that plans, manufactures and distributes photographs, sound and silent motion pictures, slides, dioramas, cased collections and specimens, all to the number of more than a million shipments annually, and for all of the public relations of the museum such as radio programs, guiding, information, lectures, press relations and many others. Dr. Russell, who also acts as Executive Curator of Forestry and Conservation at the museum, has very little spare time; however, in the course of a year he and his staff deal directly with enough children to make a connected human chain reaching across the entire state of Kansas.

Dr. Charles Russell . . . will speak at convocation at 10 a. m., Tuesday, in Memorial hall.

YMCA ELECTION TO BE BY MAIL

Ballots Sent Out To All Members

Ballots for the election of officers have been mailed to all members of the YMCA, Bart N. Peak, secretary, has announced.

Members should check the names of the candidates according to directions on the ballots and return them by noon Saturday. They may be addressed to the YMCA and dropped in the University post office or they may be left at the YM office in the Union building.

Two Run For President

Brice Kennelly, arts and sciences sophomore from Covington, and Norman Chrisman, engineering sophomore from Pikeville, are the candidates for president. The one receiving the largest number of votes will be declared president and the other will be vice-president.

Jim Hurt, Hardburly, and Joe Ford, Owensboro, are candidates for treasurer. Due to a misprint on the ballots, these are listed as vice-presidential candidates, Peak explained.

Candidates for secretary are William Embry, Lexington, and Russell Conrad, Burlington.

Four Up For Board

Candidates for student members of the advisory board are Duane Van Horn, Binghamton, N. Y.; Kenneth Bruckart, Washington, D. C.; Ralph McCracken, Lexington; and Logan Savage.

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, dean and registrar, and Prof. Edward Newbury, psychology department, are candidates for the faculty member of the board.

Paul Nickell and Guy Weeks, the new YMCA secretary for the Lexington organization, are candidates for the businessman member of the board.

Those who may desire to read in Record Office, or in other archives the British Museum, in the public whether in the London area or outside, may obtain from the Union readers' tickets which will enable them to begin reading on their day of application.

Programs of special courses being conducted for American troops (on leave) during the current academic year at Oxford, Cambridge, and London universities may also be seen at the Union. Men expecting to be stationed near any of the British provincial universities can likewise find at the Union such educational information as may meet with their individual needs.

ARMY TRAINEES TO GET CREDIT FOR WORK HERE

Files Arranged To Keep Progress Of Each Student

Soldiers who will be assigned to the University for training in the army's specialized training program will be eligible to receive college credits for scholastic work completed while here, Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University dean and registrar, has announced.

Separate files have been arranged where the progress of each soldier-student may be kept apart from the University regular student files.

At the end of the war, the army men who have taken courses at the University may obtain college credit upon application if they certify they were graduates of an accredited high school at the time the course was taken.

"We feel that inauguration of this plan has many advantages," Dean Chamberlain said. "Many of our students here at the University will be called into active service while in sight of graduation. Under the new plan, members of this group trained under the specialists' corps program at a school where credit is given may finish graduation requirements before being released for the army."

"Students now enrolled in the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes—if called into service and sent to take courses under the army program at a school where credit is given—also will have a distinct advantage as they will feel more inclined to finish their courses of study after the war if they can earn some credit while in service."

Major W. Gayle Starnes, former assistant director of the extension department, has been named chief of the training division of the Lexington Signal depot to succeed Lieut.-Col. Paul D. Meek.

Major Starnes has been serving as executive officer of the depot's training division since his return from the Command and General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in February.

1,532 Registered For Spring Term By Second Day

More than 100 students enrolled in the University during the second day of registration, making the total number registered 1,532 at closing time Wednesday, according to Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, registrar.

Almost two-thirds of these students are women.

Enrollment Wednesday was 948 less than final enrollment for the winter quarter and 1,280 under that for the fall quarter.

Wednesday, March 31, is the last day a person can enter an organized class. A class may be dropped without a grade through April 12, Dr. Chamberlain announced.

NEW COURSES OFFERED FOR SOCIAL WORKERS

Subjects Open In Psychiatry, Group Work

Two new courses, Principles in Group Work and Psychiatric Information, are being offered for the first time this quarter, according to Dr. Vivien M. Palmer, head of the social work department.

The first course, to be taught by Mrs. Florence R. Miller, has been planned especially for club leaders, teachers responsible for group projects, and volunteers assisting in recreation work for young defense workers. The course, open to both graduate and undergraduate students, may be taken for either three or four credits.

Psychiatric Information is open to graduate students and is planned for social workers and persons interested in behavior problems. The teacher will be Dr. Orcepa Knepper, psychiatrist at Eastern State hospital. It is a two credit course.

A Temporary "30"

WISE... and Otherwise

By BOB AMMONS

We strove mightily this week to think up a nifty observation to open Wise and Otherwise for our final quarter, hoping it might go down in history with some of the classic phrases of Thomas Paine, Abraham Lincoln, Winston Churchill, or President Roosevelt. But struggle as we might, we could never sum up the spirit of the time in words so definitely tagged for immortality as those of a senior who wandered into Rose Street Tuesday night. Approaching four other male students, he smiled hesitantly and then greeted them:

"I'm a 4-F. What are you doing here?"

But of course, war or no war, people will always get confused on registration day. There was, for instance, a sophomore girl who reported at the time when "D through E" was called, because she thought you were supposed to sign up according to your grades for the past quarter.

The old days when there were SAE's and DTD's and AGR's has just about passed. The only two fraternities remaining in any strength are the ROTC's and FFFF's.

However, not all of the former students have been smitten by nostalgia for their old University. We have a letter from one graduate who remarks that he prefers his camp to UK. Out there, he reports, there is only one obstacle course.

Over the "vacation"—all two days of it—the agriculture college's Dr. Beers made a talk on the Beveridge plan, which sounds logical to us.

Mrs. Roosevelt, we read, has donated one of her dresses to Russian Relief, in order to help clothe some destitute Russian woman. Now if she would only throw in a couple of those hats, too, she could help raise morale here at home in addition.

In New York a defense worker, fogged up from drinking too much absinthe, went home and murdered his wife. Evidently absinthe doesn't make the heart grow fonder.

Major Griffin tells us that an officer should never assign a soldier to a task which he has not done himself, which should prove rather a problem for an instructor of WAAC's.

After the Irish potato famine of 1850, we read, a great number of the inhabitants of the emerald isle came to the United States, where many of them later became policemen and politicians. That just goes to show the terrible things that can happen when an Irishman runs out of spuds.

We have just finished reading an article on the administration of Herbert Hoover, and have come to the conclusion that the rotund Herbie was America's original boogie-woogie bungle boy.

Goodbye To Tuesday's Kernel

Tuesday's Kernel has gone to war.

The Board of Publications has yielded to the press of wartime conditions and recommended that only one edition of the student paper be published each week.

It had been the hope of The Kernel staff and the journalism department that the handwriting on the wall could be ignored for the remainder of the year. But a careful consideration of the facts has made us realize that the move is necessary immediately if The Kernel is to remain on a sound financial basis.

Along with the problems of finance occasioned by the loss in circulation and resultant loss in advertising revenue comes a state of emergency in the print shop. The Kernel print shop has maintained a policy of employing students.

Almost all of these students have already received calls to the armed forces. It has been found impossible to hire sufficient mechanical workers to replace them.

The idea of putting out two smaller papers, tabloids, each week was given much thought, but mechanical difficulties vetoed the plan.

The Kernel has for a long time dreamed of the day when it could take its place in the ranks of schools publishing a daily newspaper.
The fulfillment of this dream was not far off when war broke out.

When the war is over and the campus is back to normal we look forward to the return of Tuesday's Kernel and the possible birth of Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday editions.

And The War Fund Comes To Life

The University Student War Fund has finally come to life. After a year of the obscurity which only projects greeted with enthusiasm by the students and then forgotten can know, the Student War Fund has been given a life-giving shot in the arm.

Several weeks ago an investigation was made into the status of the Fund. The history of the Fund from its birth in a Kernel editorial to its recognition by an SGA bill establishing a committee to administer it was traced.

The Fund was to be the answer to University students' desire to make an important contribution to the war effort. The money in the fund was to be placed in defense bonds and held for the duration. After the war, the money from the sale of the bonds was to be used as an assistance fund for students wishing to return to the University for study.

Organizations were to give affairs "for the War Fund."

We brought these facts to life then and we do so again today to remind the students that such a thing as the Student War Fund exists.
Our last effort met with little success. We pointed out that the students of the University had failed again. The students agreed by their silence that they had.

The proceeds from The Kernel scrap drive of last fall have been lying in a safe for months waiting to be contributed to the War Fund.
The money was never put into the Fund because we could never locate it. The SGA president reported no knowledge of money in the Fund. The Comptroller had no record of the Fund.

In a last determined effort to make the University Student War Fund a living project, The Kernel has taken the $47.71 which it realized from the scrap drive to the Comptroller's office and, on its own initiative, opened an account in the name of the Fund.

The necessity for such a fund has been brought home to us in the past few weeks with the departure of a great part of the male enrollment for the armed forces. Some of these men will be unable to continue their education after the war unless a full-blown Student War Fund is at hand to help out.

Certainly we who are left behind could do this little bit for those who have gone to fight for all of us. The Kernel has made the first move. It is up to the students of the University to keep the ball rolling.

Private Landrum Reports On Life At Induction Center

Dear Reservists:

This business of being inducted into the Army's active list is one that does not conform to the advance notice that many of us received before leaving Kentucky.
There are a few "tips" which I believe will aid the E.R.C. men and which some of us in-the-process wish we had known previously.
Some of the information is as follows:

1. Bring clothes enough for a week's stay—uniforms not being issued for possibly five days. Bedroom slippers are mighty handy.
2. Have a towel and soap in hand, ready for the dirt that is everywhere.
3. Don't bring an abundant supply of cigarettes for they are 13 cents per pack at the post exchange.
4. Clothes are shipped home free —baggage, cameras, etc., excluded.
5. It is a good idea to have a money belt, although one can be purchased on the post. Instead of an overcoat, wear a raincoat plus a hat.
6. Carry a deck of cards, dice, or something for amusement to pass away the long hours of waiting.

The stay will seem very long at Fort Hayes in spite of the actual duration; the saying goes around here that all one does is, "hurry and wait."

Good luck,
PVT. BOB LANDRUM.

Soldier Engineer Is All Out For Kentucky Courtesy

Dear Editor:

We have been here for over six months now, and can say we have enjoyed every minute of it. From the first open house at the Student Union to the latest dance given especially for us.

We thank all who have given up evenings to be at our service, especially the co-eds. Many a soldier meets one very nice girl before very long, and then General Sherman's saying about war doesn't hold true.

Many a family has a soldier over for Sunday dinner; and this, in part, reminds him of home. If this is known as Kentucky courtesy, we're for it. We cannot thank you people too much.

As most of us have just come out of basic training, this training we are now getting is very tough. But after this we may go right overseas, or stay in the states for a few months, then overseas duty. So if we forget our manners or don't act as gentlemen at times, don't think too hard of us, as this may be our last stop in the United States.

A Second Chance Comes For The United States

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first half of an oration on "My Plan for the Post-War World," which won the annual Porter Literary Society prize of $200, in the society's contest at the close of last quarter. The successful contestant, Bob Ammons, is a former editor of The Kernel, and a senior in the ROTC.

It is a rare occasion in history when a nation—and especially when the world as a whole—is given a second chance. It is a rare and remarkable privilege for a nation to be able to turn back in its footsteps and correct the errors of its past.

Today that second chance has come for the United States.

We are living in a sick world.
Something has gone wrong — I don't see how anyone can deny it.
Even before this last war started, the cogs were slipping; things were beginning to crack up.

As I read, and as I look around me, I can't help but feel that things are out of joint, that the world is staggering around in the dark looking for something it can't find. I can't help but feel that something is basically wrong with a world which is swept within 25 years by the greatest war in its history, then a depression which threw large groups of people and nations into poverty for ten years, and then a second war of such proportions that the first looks like a back-yard snow fight in comparison.

These three catastrophes were not caused by any natural disturbance, such as a famine or drought, but by men and the systems that men have organized.

Peace Not Inevitable

I have no illusions that things are going to change for the better at the close of the present war. I have no reason to believe that even an Allied victory in the present war inevitably means the end of the trouble. I have no reason to hope for peace and security in my time just because my country and her allies manage to defeat the forces of dictatorship on the battlefield.

I can not forget that once before, the nations of the world had an opportunity to work together and solve the problems that faced them —and they failed. I can not forget that the United States once before had an opportunity to take the leadership to bring some sort of order out of the chaos which reigned—and she refused.

But also I can not forget that we have been given another chance.

At a tremendous price—a price almost beyond belief—we are purchasing a reprieve. We have stepped with heads up into a war which is bound to throw this nation into chaos and turmoil for years after it is over, and we have mortgaged the nation for a generation — all for that second chance. We are going to have one more opportunity to join the forces of the nations of the world to work together with each other instead of against each other.
If we fail this time, I am afraid it may be the last.

World Already Unified

It is absurd to talk about whether we want a unified world or not—we've already got it. It is useless to argue whether the world should be closely knit together—it is. Advances in technology have brought about a dependence between nations for their very livelihood, which is beyond any changing now.
If we are to have anything short of chaos from now on, it must be a world order. The only choice for us now is to choose what kind of an order we shall have.

The Fascist nations want a world order, but they want one based on suppression of all individuality to support that order. I believe it is possible to attain an order based not on suppression—but on fairness, freedom, and opportunity for all.

A Fascist victory in this war, I believe, will mean a blind, unjust control of the war. But I do not believe that an Allied victory in itself means a world of security, liberty, and opportunity.

Still A Possibility

I believe the United Nations can win this war, and I believe that after the war the world can be organized in a manner consistent with the democratic ideals of this nation and of myself. Even today, I am beginning to lose hope that it will happen, but I feel that there is still a possibility. And that possibility—even if it is only the tenth chance in a hundred—I am willing to fight for.

Despite what the trouble-shooters commentators, with hand lotion to sell, and the two-bit politicians with themselves to sell, try to make us believe, I am not fighting to preserve the American Way of Life as it was after the last war. I am not fighting in order that Ford cars and not Fiat cars may be sold in China, or that Douglas airplanes and not Junkers airplanes may be sold to South American airlines. I am not fighting because the dictator nations suddenly appeared on the scene to try to break up our pat little post-Versailles world. But I am fighting because they stand in the way of a better world I want.
I am not fighting to return the world to its condition before the war started, but for the chance to surpass it.

And so, if neither the world of the Versailles Treaty nor the world of Adolf Hitler's geopoliticians fits the bill, what do I want?

No Handy Blueprint

First, let me say, I have no blueprint for the world of the future—no Union Now or Covenant of the League up my sleeve. I don't know how the war is going to come out, and I have too limited a knowledge of economics, finance, and politics to propose any scheme. But I do know what principles I believe it should be based on, and on those I think I am competent to have an opinion.

Many people argue that it is a "waste of time" to talk about postwar principles before the war is won, but that is mainly the dodge of chicken-hearted politicians who are afraid to face the reality of the situation. Just as the United States drew up a Declaration of Independence stating the principles for which they were fighting, and then — years later — actually put those principles into effect, so I believe the thinkers of the United Nations can draw up a Declaration of Principles now. In addition to the sweeping propaganda effect such a statement would have, it would also serve as a guide post for the days of confusion after the war.

Among the points which I believe must be included are the following:

Supra-National Authority

First, I believe there must be some form of supra-national authority. The era of the sovereign nation-state came to a close in 1929.
At that time, the principle of international anarchy—in which every nation had the right to pursue whatever policy was best for it, regardless of the effect on other nations—collapsed in the rubble of the Great Depression. The principle of don't-give-a-dam-thing which was rampant in the 1920's, the welter of competing national interests — the Me First attitude — were all very nice when a nation was a unit unto itself. But the confusion that resulted just couldn't mix with the economically unified world we have now. No longer can the British Empire sit aloof from the rest of the world, grasping for markets and thumbing her nose when her colonies plead for industries of their own; no longer can Italy consider Ethiopia "her" market, nor can the United States tuck South America under her wing as her own little chick! The Dutch can't reserve the East Indies for their own bailiwick.

Forces greater than nations — greater than agreements or constitutions—are at work. A growing expanding world can not be hemmed in by treaties and scraps of paper. The seams have burst three times in 25 years, and another attempt to sew them up can only mean that they will burst again.

I do not mean that I want an international laissez-faire. We must have an open world trade, but it must be planned; not a haphazard, pot-luck, come-what-may free-for-all of competition, but a trade planned for the whole world, for balance and cooperation.

The second principle on which the world must be based, I propose, is what President Roosevelt has called "freedom from want" for every man in every nation. The President set his goal at "a healthy peacetime life." Vice President Wallace termed it "the right to drink a pint of milk a day." I don't see that a "healthy" life for everyone is impossible in a world where (before the war) farmers could grow more than they could sell, manufacturers could make more clothes than people could buy, and where people were sleeping in subway entrances, while carpenters and masons hunted for work. I believe those carpenters have a right to work, and I believe that the people living in shanties have a right to a decent home.

Mr. Wallace, in his now-famous "bottle of milk" speech declared that the present war is a "people's war"—a continuation of the same, struggle of the common people which has already seen the American Revolution of 1775; the French revolution in 1792; the Latin-American revolutions of the Bolivar Era, the German Revolution of 1848, the Russian Revolution of 1918 (and I might add, the Chinese Revolution of 1926-27). As I said before, I do not think the war is in itself a "people's war" but I believe it can be made a people's war.

I believe that out of this war can come a life of security for all people—not just the people who own things. It must reward a man justly for his labor, and it must give him an opportunity to work as much as he wants to work. If this means socialism, then I say bring on the socialism. If communism, then bring on the communism. I will admit frankly that my knowledge of economics is too shallow to permit me to decide what form of economic and social organization will do it, but I do know that it must be done. I don't know if the capitalistic system inherently prevents that type of a world, but I say this—if it does, as many people claim, then the capitalistic system will have to go.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The remainder of this article will be printed in next week's issue of The Kernel.

What Goes On There ....

By JANET EDWARDS

From Temple university in Philadelphia comes the report that one of the professors skipped classes too much. On his seventh absence the class chalked up this message on the board for him: "Sorry, Prof.
We couldn't wait! That makes seven, m'boy (automatic flunk)."

When the weather in Maryland became uncomfortably cold and the co-eds on the University of Maryland campus began to don the apparel which the well-dressed college girl definitely does not wear, the following notice was issued by one of the University deans:
"Gym suits, slacks, riding habits, overalls, snow suits, shorts, etc., should be worn only when it is a regulation requirement, but not generally to academic classes, on buses, or traveling from Washington, or in public places."

The Tulane Hullahoo recently gave a new impression of the present day salutation. Five years ago it might have been: "Hello, Joe, whattayaknow?" Now it's just plain: "Hell, Joe, whendayago?"

From the Duke Chronicle in Durham, N. C. comes the idea that there are only five kinds of wit and these are described as:

1. Half—
2. Nit—
3. To—
4. Scintillating—
5. Hambolger—onions

A too-true picture of college life after rationing and the draft had swept the campus was portrayed by the Kappa Deltas at the University of Louisiana for the winning skit at the Mortar Board Stunt Night.
Dressed in an L Club sweater, one of the campus co-eds gave an impersonation of one of the L.S.U. anti-fraternity sympathizers delivering a speech. They even won a cup for this portrayal.

The Reveille, L.S.U.'s publication, also sends in another interesting bit of information which says that "To desire immortality is to desire the eternal perpetuation of a great mistake." Maybe this jives with the word of the wise which informs us that "To be ignorant of one's ignorance is the malady of the ignorant."

"The Gulfordian" tells us about the man who was only going to have three children because he heard that every fourth child born was Chinese.

Twenty-eight canines were marched back and forth before expert judges at Purdue university recently when ambitious promoters of the University helped to make the special entry in the contest the winner of the cup which was awarded to the best-looking animal. The judges, who had to meet the one requirement of having no previous knowledge of dogs, were ## Saved! Tons of tin!

For years telephone cables have been spliced in a very satisfactory way. But the solder joint contained 40 per cent war-vital tin.

So Bell System men devised a new type of joint which saves up to 80 per cent of the solder. A "Victory Joint" they called it.

The new technique has been adopted throughout the System with the result that 600,000 pounds of tin and an even greater amount of lead can be saved in a normal year's construction.

This is another example of the nation-wide cooperation of Bell System people in fulfilling their ideal—service to the nation in peace or war.

Crowd Of 4,000 Jams Alumni Gym To Honor Men Leaving University

Approximately 4,000 students, faculty members, and parents thronged Alumni gymnasium March 12 to honor and recognize the 800 men who were leaving the University for active service, in the school's first two-hour convocation.

Following the regimental parade in which all members of the ROTC and other men who left at the end of the winter quarter participated, the entire group assembled in the gymnasium. During the course of the program, they were recognized by President Herman L. Donovan for the University, Governor Keen Johnson for the state and board of trustees, Dr. W. S. Webb for the faculty, Col. B. E. Brewer for the armed forces, and Robert H. Hillenmeyer, for the students.

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Dr. Jesse Hermann, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church. "America the Beautiful," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "On, On, U. of K.," and "The Star Spangled Banner" were sung by the congregation led by Miss Mildred Lewis and accompanied by the University Little Symphony under the direction of Alexander Capurso.

"We're Proud of You"

"We aren't here to bid you say farewell. We are not here to say we're sorry that you're going. But we are here to say that you are proud of you!" stated Dr. Donovan. "This is the most important convocation the University of Kentucky has ever held or ever will hold. Not that it's the most unusual. But it symbolizes something that's happening in the world today. You are making history today and every day," he continued, "and you are taking part in the most important program of all times."

Service Flag Dedicated

He pointed out the large service flag which was dedicated in honor of "all of our sons and daughters in the service," and requested that the boys send cards back to the University with their names and addresses so that the roll of honor may be complete.

The flag, which now hangs in the Great Hall of the Union building, contains a star and the number 3852 which represents former students now in service. A large gold star with the number 32 indicates those killed in active duty. The numerals will be changed periodically so that the flag may be kept up to date.

"You are in a crusade, a crusade for freedom," Dr. Donovan added. "Half a million men will go out to defend their country and it is a spiritual movement designed to bring forth a better world."

Governor Speaks For State

Governor Johnson expressed the pride of the state in the men who were leaving and in their "fine attitude." "You have a rendezvous with duty, a blind date with destiny, and as you depart you are prepared to offer your life as a sacrifice," he said.

Expressing the theme of several of the speeches, he declared, "Only those who are not afraid to die are fit to live."

"You bear with you the best wishes of the faculty. They will follow you in your further achievements; they will pray for your success; and they will welcome you back when the war is over," Dr. Webb stated.

His closing words, which he described as "trite but sincerely expressive," occasioned the greatest ovation of the entire program. He said simply but effectively, "God-speed, and may you ever have His blessing."

Meh Informed About Orders

Colonel Brewer informed the military students that he had learned by long-distance telephone that they would receive their orders in a week or ten days. These orders will be sent to the students' homes, he said.

"Every nation must at some time defend itself against outlaw nations," he remarked. "However horrible war is, we, the American people, prefer it to slavery and having our acts dictated by foreign rulers."

Happy Landing!

"Happy landing! And when you are over Tokyo or Berlin drop a block buster for your old PMS&T," he concluded, "and don't forget to get a military haircut before you report."

Anita Roos . . . is the newly elected president of Phi Beta.

Anita Roos Elected To Head Phi Beta

Anita Roos, junior music major from Lexington, has been elected president of Phi Beta, national honorary and professional music, dramatic, and dance fraternity for women. She succeeds Wanda Austin, Miami, Fla.

Other officers chosen were Priscilla Graddy, Lexington, vice-president; Mabel Gumm, Lexington, secretary; Kathleen Hagan, Ft. Mitchell, treasurer; Anne Carter Feltz, Russellville, assistant treasurer; Helen Lipscomb, Lexington, historian; and Ruth Pace, Ridgeway, Va., door-keeper.

Jane Patrick Moore, daughter of Mrs. Jane Williams Moore, Frankfort, became the bride of David Weir Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Collins, Frankfort, Saturday at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Ben G. Williams. The Rev. A. C. Brooks, pastor of the First Christian church, officiated.

The maid of honor was Patricia McConnell and bridesmaids were Patricia Prewitt and Mary Bell Hay. Harry M. Collins served his son as best man. Robert Courtney, Lexington, was groomsmen.

The bride is now a student at the University and the bridegroom is a senior at the University where he is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Russell-Shain

Miss Floy Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Russell, Hartford, Ky., became the bride of Lt. Layman E. Shain, son of Sgt. and Mrs. H. T. Shain of Louisville and Florida, on Tuesday, March 9 at Hartford.

The attendants were Herman Midkiff and Wanda Russell, sister of the bride.

The bride is a former student of the University, where she was a member of the Home Economics club, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Home Economics honorary, and a member of the Agricultural council.

Lieut. Shain also attended the University and is now in the United States Air Corps. He received his pilot's wings on February 6 at Marfa, Texas. At present he is stationed at Godman field, Fort Knox, Ky.

Hillenmeyer replied for the students that they were proud to go "knowing that we have a background given us by such competent officers here."

He quoted President Roosevelt in closing by saying that the young men were ready to go out and see to it that the state of the nation remains good; the heart, sound; the spirit, strong; and the faith, eternal.

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, dean and registrar of the University, presided at the program and introduced the student sponsors of the ROTC and the deans and officials seated on the platform.
